Great Dive. My first night dive. Baracuda stalking above, conch mateing, urinches, moray eel hunting in the dark. Small fish swarming into the flashlight (blood worms?). Very aswome dive.

Suzanne's first real dive. She did great! We did skills for the divemaster then had a private tour with him. We saw a scorpion fish. May was he disguised, looked like he had coral growing out of his head. Also saw a spiker looking think. Great Dive.

Great Dive. Green Moray hiding in the shadows. Large and small baracuda. 2 different blow fish. Small flower that sucked back in called a feather duster or a fan worm.

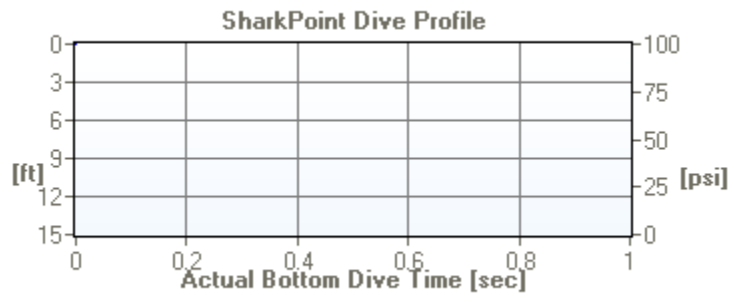

Suzanne and I turded around early and navigated back to the boat. Only I did not see the boat, we swam right under it! Suzanne saw the boar. We swam about 200 yards past the boat. No problems.

Night Dive. Saw a spotted Morray eat a fish. The eel was free swimming and trying to choke down the fish. It only took about a minute. Saw lots of small squid about 1 -2 inches long. Saw a spotted rock fish under a small ledge. Lots of squarrel fish swimming around.

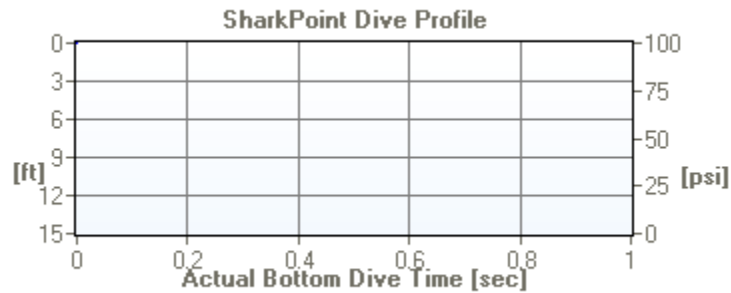

One of the British researchers took a 1 1/2 inch cockroach on the dive! Nasty!

Great dive. Went down to 130 then swam through the collumns. Suzanne did great!

Large Baracuda called the Park Ranger. Lots of Jacks, large Grouper. We did not see any sharks, but some divers saw a black tip shark.

It was kind of scary looking down into the hole. Very deep ~435 feet.

I took some of the divemasters air on the way back up. He handed me his spare, upside down and I was getting water. Freeted me out, but I still had my regulator in my hand. After I rejected it, he gave me his main and he used the spare. I did not realize the first was upside down until later in the trip.

Dive site features a swim through that starts at 30 feet and exits at 90 feet. Suzanne went over the wall and met us on the other side.

The highlight of the dive was a 8 foot reef shark! He swam a few circles around us and got everyones attention.

The site was spectacular! Lots of large formations and lots of color.

Another spectacular site! Greet formations with many deep cuts through the wall.

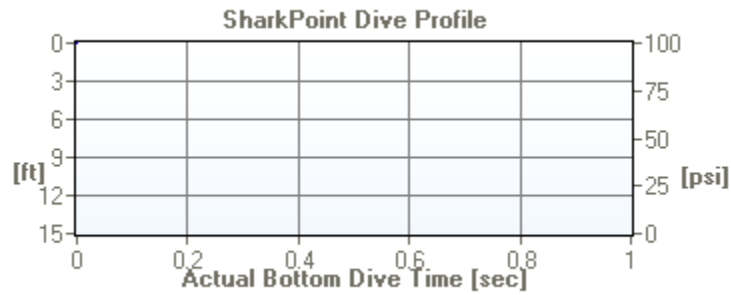

Suzanne and I went to trun around after 20 minutes only to see another 8 foot foot reef shark (maybe the same shark from the last dive). Plus a large baracuda. The shark left and we never saw him again.

Lots of large grouper. Huge spiny lobster. Still did not see any eagle rays.

This site is the location of the entrance to the Abyis. This is a underwater cave system. A couple of the divemasters claim to have entered the abysis to a depth of 240 feet. They said that at that point they dropped a wieght on a line that did not hit bottom.

This was the last dive for the trip. We had a great time.

Sherpa Hill!

First shore dive through heavy surf. We had a long hike down to the water, I was exhausted. After a 15 minute surface swim I caught my breath and we descended.

Saw lots of spiney urchin, large starfish, many garibaldi.

Heavy surge! Suzanne and I got seperated towards the end of the dive. Poor visibility.

Suzanne and I on our first shore dive alone. We did well.

1. We geared up at the car and descended the 100 steps to the beach. Our entry through the surf went well. Swam 50 yards and rested.
2. We descended to the sandy bottom and adjusted our buoyancy.
3. We swam a modified triangle and looked for anything interesting. We saw small and large starfish. Small and 1 large flounder. Next the exit!
4. The exit was very ugly! We went in far enough to stand then took off our fins, only Suzanne only got one fin off before we got pushed into the surf. She finally lost her balance and fell. We could not get her back up. Every time a wave came in she bumped closer to shore until her BC cumberbun came undone. I took her BC/tank and put it on the beach.
5. We got to dry beach and rested. We survived!! Overall a good experience.

Oh yea, the french woman came to her rescue and helped her to a bench "you sit and drink some water for 10 minutes!"

Check out dive for trip. large feather dusters, spiny lobsters. Chaz the dive master wore a hot pink speedo over his exposure suit so we could identify him. The other divemaster had leopard pattern speedo. Too funny!

The trip started with a close call driving to the site. A construction truck turned left as I was passing. Very close, but no accident, and us without rental insurance.

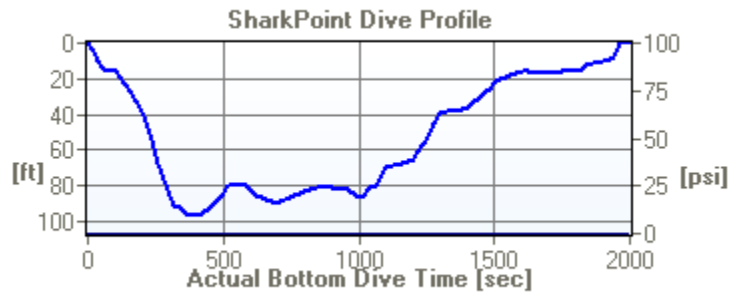

Went down to 11 lbs or weight and it worked well. Nice dive, no cool fish sightings, but huge coral formations. We found the marker bowie coming back.

This site is part of the double reef. We went down the first reef to a sandy bottom @ 100 feet. Large eel garden with 40 or so eels. The second reef is at 80 feet. Saw 8 large jacks looking nice. Suzanne saw a turtle in the distance. Good dive, we went right back to the dive bowie.

Huge wreck, very cool. This was a pot smuggling ship that was getting ready to sink. The coast gard kept it from leaving port, and all the crew disappeared! It was full of ganga! Anyway, we swam around the entire site. About 9 very large tarpen and a couple large baracuda hanging around in the shadows. This was a deep dive, we were under 80 feet most of the time.

Nice relaxing dive after a morning of planning on a windsurfer. Thousands of fish, it was raining small fish. Also saw a spotted eel and 2 black spiney urchents. The site had easy beach access. Very nice dive.

Night dive with Allen. Not much to see, but fun. We swam with the lights off for 5 minutes, it was pretty cool, you could see the coral heads in the moonlight. We did see a large crab close to shore. Allen played with his camera most of the time.

Rescue Diver open water work. I did all the drills pretty well. A couple of things I could have improved on.

1. Take the unconscious diver all the way out of the water!
2. Slow down and take your time on rescue breaths.
3. Utilize anyone on-site (call 911, get the O2, keep these people back . . .)

First work as a divemaster in training. I was told to observe only, but soon the instructors were asking me to do things. "Help Diane get weighted correctly", "Help hold down fins during the pin pivot skill". There were three to four instructors, George, Armand, ??? (new young guy), and later Chris joined the group. I enjoyed answering questions from students, and I don't think I made a fool of myself, at least not that I knew of. It was a long day 7:00 AM to 3:00 PM, but it was good. As soon as I'm given some authority, I think I can be effective at keeping students organized.

There were also a few divemasters, I think all but one was in training.

I used 8 lbs of weight, I think I can go down to 6 lbs. I'll setup the weight belt with that for the next pool/lake dive without a wetsuit.

Dive site was really a little North of the "Twin Rocks" site. Nice kelp forest. We saw 4 black sea bass. We were swimming up to a large clump of kelp, Suzanne was looking down, and 2 sea bass were right in front of us. I think they where small ~3' long 250 lbs. I got Suzanne's attention and I think it freaked her out! Swam gently towards them and 2 others came in. The last was the largest ~400 lbs. Pretty cool!

We navigated back to the boat without any problems.

Dive Master Training Dive(s). Assisted with IDC students. Completed my last Swim requirement, Diver Tow, and earned all 5-points (towed Dee). Did a Scenario 7 exercise and performed "perfect". I did play victim for one student and without a wetsuit I was negative, he worked hard, and I felt bad. I also demonstrated my underwater skills and earned 4's and 5's on all skills. I got to play DM for some of the IDC exercises, I felt comfortable and did a good job of watching students and the instructor.

Dive Master Course Work. I did my Dive Site Briefing to Barb and Brett. I used the slate and hit all bullets. Remember for the lost buddy PADI recommends that if you loose your buddies, look for 1 minute then surface. After the briefing I took Barb and Jonny on a tour (also for the DM course work). It could have gone better. The visibility was terrible, so I ended up between the two divers holding on to Jonny with my left hand and holding hands with Barb. I also managed to get us lost, I asked Jonny if he knew which way the exit was and he took us further into the lake! No problems, we ended the dive ~40 minutes in, made our safty stops and surface swam back to the exit. I need to re-do my navigation training, it's been 20 years. Weighting was perfect.

Dive Master Pool Work. Helped out with a Rescue Diver confined water class. Jessica was the student with Jim, and Robin helping. Brett was the instructor. Jessica did well, she had problems with the surfacing the unresponsive diver at the bottom drill, but she kept at it and did a couple nice accesses at the end.

I did my equipment exchange drill with Brett. It was much harder than I thought it would be. The issue was that I got short of breath pretty quickly, and wanted to bolt to the surface more than a few times. I think it started because I was blowing bubbles at first like you're supposed to. As soon as I noticed Brett not blowing, I stopped. I kept my cool and did not panic. We had an additional challenge since Brett had a weight integrated BC and I had a weight belt. When I got on Brett's BC he wanted to float while I was stuck to the floor nicely. I quickly gave him my belt, and we continued. I'm glad I did it, but I'm not sure I would want to do it again. If I do it again, I need to remember to take my time, breath normaly, don't get short of breath, don't blow bubbles!

I'm just about finished with the training. I have one more class session (no more tests), and one lake session that we'll do next Sunday. Then I'll be a Dive Master, now I need to figure out what I'll do with it.

Dive Master course work. Did a second skill circuit with an IDC group. All went well, I got to help supervise the scenario 7 exercise. I know that one pretty well now.

This was the last thing I needed to do to finish my Dive Master Certification! I'm going to move forward with the insurance that I need to work and hope to learn more, meet new people, and have some fun diving.

Dive Master work. Helped with Jessica's Rescue Diver course. Jim and I played disgruntled buddies. I called him an "old man", it was funny. Jim and I did a fun dive at the end of the day and ended up running up onto a reef about 300 yards out into the lake. We ended up walking across it to get to our destination. It looked pretty funny two divers walking in 4" of water in the middle of the lake.

First Dive as a Dive Professional! Helped with George's Dry Suite Certification dive. Jim was accessing his skills, and I was there for the fun of it. Brett was on the shore staying dry and warm. George had to do two skills with his dry suite on. 1. Fin Pivot (no issues with the one). 2. He had to hover (He had a hard time with this skill. First he was not boyant enough, then too boyany, finally he nailed it! After he did the skills we had to continue to dive for a 20 minute dive. I was the only one who had paid attention to our heading, so when George and Jim signialed that they did not know where they where, I pointed the way to the truck. Nothing too exciting, but hey I went diving today!

Fun dive with Jim and myself. We took a heading into the lake, I would lead. We started in 5' of water, I descended and started to follow our heading. After a couple minutes I looked back for Jim and did not see him. I slowed down and still did not see him. I stopped for a minute and still did not see him. I ascended from 20' and saw his bubble trail, he was behind me. I followed his bubbles down and let him know I was there.

My navigating still needs improvement. I think I have a right hand turn built into my kicks. We went pretty far into the lake and I turned 90 degrees left for 2 minutes. Then we turned 90 degrees again to head back to the exit. We started to hit shallow water 10' and we ascended to the surface only to find that we were still a few hundred yards from the exit. Oh well, everyone made it back alive!

First Divemaster work in the pool with open water class. Nick was the instructor, with 6 students, 4 young high school kids and two adults (Hydi). I was the only Divemaster. The class went well, Nick had me demonstrate the Giant Stride entry, the Equipment removal underwater, as well as help with demonstrating a few other buddy skills. The funny item for the day was when Nick had two students practice sharing air and swimming, only he forgot to turn Andy's air back on. When he gave Andy his regulator and asked him if he was OK, Andy shook his head NO! He did great and did not panic, Nick turned the air on and all was well. After the class I asked Nick for feedback on my performance. He said that he was very pleased with my work. Every time he looked for me I was in the position that he wanted me in. We did have a mis-communication where I ended up leading a buddy pair on a swim with masks off to the center of the pool. Once Nick noticed I had done this he took over and completed the skill. He ment to ask me to take a buddy pair to the center of the pool on the surface, but did not mention the surface part. No big deal, he apologized and so did I. Overall a good day.

First dive with my new equipment. Everything worked well, I needed 3 additional pounds of weight for a total of 12 lbs. The BC does great under water, but bobbing on the surface it wants to put me face down. No big deal. The regulator breaths like a dream, I can dial it tight so it's almost hard to draw air, then open it up to let it flow, very nice. I also used the octo and it was fine, although at first I had attached it to my weight pocket handle. I also need to move the retractor on my console to the right side of the console.

I also brought Jim Law's old underwater camera that he gave me. I took a few shots and will have them developed to see how it worked. It did not flood, so that made me happy.

Second visit to this site on this trip. Saw 2 more turtles, and a large baracuda at the end of the dive. We stayed deep for a long time. Suzanne had an issue with releasing air from her BC. We checked on the boat and everything looked ok. I had to help her release air from the BC twice, I held the hose high and got air to release.

Suzanne sat this dive out, she was still cold from the first dive. Nice dive, I did my own thing, poking around under things and getting out of the current to wait for other divers. At one point a different group came by and I followed the wrong DM. They both had two different types of fins on, but our guys fins where black and blue. They caught the mistake and pointed me the correct way. Saw a cool thing in a hole it looked like a venius fly trap but it was bright red and had hair like eye lashes all around, very cool looking.

Devils Throat Dive. Cool dive, Suzanne sat this trip out, so I enlisted Charles from Houston as my dive buddy. It was a deep dive going through 4 long swim throughs (more like caves with an exit). The dive started when we entered the devils throat at ~80' I was the 4th diver in line. I had a nice clean execution, very smooth and controlled. At one point you had to go down through a 36" x 48" hole, straight down. Once down there you could not see any way out, until you went another 3' then you could see the exit. We exited about 120', but I managed to hit 127' before we turned around and went into a second cave/swim through. After it was all said and done we went through 4 different caves. Some of the other divers went over the top on a couple. After the caves we stayed around 60' and swam with the current. We saw 3 eagle rays at about 200' swimming in a pattern together, it was way cool. Visibility was very good.

Afternoon dive, Suzanne stayed home so I dove with Jeff from Cali. Marinio was the dive master so lots to see. He found my sea horse. I had been asking him all week to find me one. I gave him a hand shake when he showed it to me. We also saw a couple of eels, a large grouper, and many other cool creatures.

Nice dive, I had a slight head cold, so getting some squeezes, tried to stay shallow, but sometime there were cool things to see. We saw 4 turtles, a 5' Nurse Shark, and 4 different rays. Two smaller rays were mating.

Strongest currents of any dive so far on this trip. Suzanne sat out so I was solo. I found a nice spotted eel. Divemaster found a pipe seahorse, tiny thing holding of for life in the current.

Last dive of Cozumel Trip. The trip was great, things to remember for the next Cozumel trip.

Dive Operation:

Aqua Safari is great, Donna can be bitchy, but whatever. The fast boat is the way to go and you need to book it far ahead of time.

Mariono (DM) is the best. He's slow, take time to enjoy everything you can find. Great way to dive.

Equipment:

I used 16 lbs with my 3mm and it was almost perfect. 8 in the back pockets and 8 in the integrated pockets.

Suzanne used 14 lbs in her integrated pockets and was good. Suzanne needed her skin, 3mm, and a hood. Next time we should bring her hooded vest, that should be good for her.

My regulator was great. I found that I could keep it closed down at the max unless I exerted myself, then I would open it up until I caught my breath.

Hotel:

The El Cantil was awesome. We had the best view of the sea. Cruise ships and other working boats to watch. Great sunsets.

Food:

Prima on top of El Cantil was very good. Prime Rib on Saturday and Sunday for a great price. Owner is an ass but what can you do?

La Mission restaurants are very good. One close by, Casa Mission not so close by.

Gudio's was good for pizza, try the garlic bread.

Excursions:

ATV ride is not worth the price. Short ride very rocky.

Hammerheads at Playa Del Carman has hammer head shark dive from July to mid August
